Walking the Town

Walking the town is a new initiative to provide a central hub for information on town walking in the East Riding. Market Towns have come together to showcase their best town walks and encourage visitors to their local high street. The platform is currently being developed and will be showcased through the Visit Hull and East Yorkshire Website.

Go to visithullandeastyorkshire.com for further information.

The Pilgrimage of Grace

Nine walks (one for each day of the festival) have been developed by the Pocklington Walkers are Welcome group. Each walk will have a leader and an introductory commentary at the start or an ongoing commentary en route from one of the heritage team members.

The Pilgrimage of Grace is the name assumed by religious insurgents who, in 1536 in the North of England, opposed Henry VIII's dissolution of the monasteries. The rebellion united every able bodied man in every parish of the East Riding and each parish has a contribution to make to this fascinating piece of history.

Quiet Gardens of Beverley

10 different gardens are visited, each with its own history. Perhaps they exist through the benevolence of a philanthropist, a church, the Festival of Britain or the Quiet Garden Movement. Val Wise would like to show you the quiet gardens that so many people ignore or know nothing about.

Pilgrimage of Grace Walk

This will be a circular walk based on Nunburnholme and including up the hill to Londesborough including stunning views of historic aspects of the Wolds and Vale of York. Join us and learn about the site of the female priory at Nunburnholme founded in 1180 and was noted as being the poorest house in Yorkshire at the dissolution. The priory was one of the first to be closed in August 1536 as well as being the first to be reinstated by the rebels in October of that year and had close relations with the much richer priory at Warter. We will also visit Londesborough and learn about William Thwaites the vicar, who in 1535 prophesied that Henry VIII would be ousted from the throne. The walk will finish at Nunburnholme Church with its lengthy history and special relics.

The route is all on pavements and roads so has good access. The walk is a gentle stroll, and is accessible to wheel chair users and push chairs.

Join Barbara English to look at some Beverley examples of 'People Power', this year's national theme for Heritage Open Days. Three examples will be explored, with their locations when possible: the Peasants' Revolt of 1381 (the first great popular rebellion in English history), the 'Clerical Strike' of the Minster clergy (also in 1381), and the Pilgrimage of Grace of 1536-7, which began in Yorkshire at Beverley and threatened Henry VIII's government, the most serious rebellion of his reign.

A third country house was also planned at Risby, but never completed. Suitable footwear and wet weather gear recommended: this is a country walk over gently undulating terrain, unsuitable for those with walking difficulties. They are criss-crossed by public paths and you can use the routes to make up some excellent short circular walks. The rail trails can be used by walkers, cyclists and horse riders, but motorbikes are not permitted.

The East Riding has a number of picnic sites where you can enjoy some alfresco dining. Our main sites include Bracey Bridge, Fimber, Wayrhams and Towthorpe.

WALKING THE TOWN
POCKLINGTON

1
A bronze plaque of Major Percy Stewart is actually in the gardens but visible from the garden shop. The sculpture was made by a former Art Master at Pocklington School, Pete Edwards in 2005 to commemorate 100 years of the gardens. Major Stewart taught at Pocklington School prior to embarking on a series of worldwide travels during which he collected exotic plants and animals. He and his wife began establishing the gardens from 1905 after he bought the hall. The gardens were bequeathed in trust to the town by Major Stewart and his wife. They now include a famous collection of water lilies, a museum and a café.

Leave the gardens via the main gates, turn right and walk towards the town bearing right at the junction of Regent Street and New Street. Proceed along New Street until you reach Dean's Lane; cast a glance a few yards further along to the former National School with its 1854 plaque clearly visible, now converted into housing. Go through Dean's Lane into the Market Square.

2
The Jubilee Monument stands proudly in the centre, clearly visible despite the parking around its base. It was erected in 1897 by the local council to commemorate Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. The monument was paid for by public subscription. A panel was added in 2012 to mark Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee.

Bear right from the Market Square past the Feathers Hotel and then left across the entrance to Union Street. The Post Office should be visible set back a little from Market Street.

3
In front of the Post Office is a WWI memorial and garden. It is an imposing column capped by a cross. It lists the names of the 53 men who were either born in Pocklington or who had been resident in the town at the start of the Great War and who lost their lives during 1914-18. It is particularly special because it was commissioned by the comrades of the Great War, a committee of local survivors of that conflict. A local stonemason, John Richardson, carved the memorial stones. His family had been in business as masons in Pocklington for over 150 years. More recent display boards add further recognition of some of the people and events.

From the Post Office cross Market Street and turn and walk left. The pavement and row of shops curves rightward, enter Waterloo Lane for a short distance, turn sharp left in front of the greengrocers (notice the splendid signwriting above the entrance). Then sharp right into Clarke's Lane. Follow the lane into the churchyard through the gates.

Look straight up at the east wall of the church. Read the dedication to Thomas Pelling, the flying man. Thomas was a travelling showman and acrobat of some renown in the country. His personal challenge was to descend from the top of the church tower to the ground via a tight rope. Sadly, his assistant in charge of the rope allowed some slack and Thomas killed himself on impact against the choir wall. He was buried where he fell in April 1733 and became famous as the Flying Man of Pocklington.

From the grave follow the churchyard path round to the church entrance on the south wall.

5
Enter All Saints church, known as the Cathedral of the Wolds. Look for the upper remnants of the Sotheby Cross in the North transept. This is a churchyard preaching cross commemorating the visit in AD 627 of Paulinus to the area during his visit he baptised the population in the beck which flows next to the churchyard. This particular cross was erected by the Sotheby family (ancestors of the famous Sotheby Fine Art Sale Rooms) circa 1400. The Sotheby Cross possibly replaced a Saxon Paulinus cross. A Tudor cross stands in the churchyard, the original brought back by the Denison family, The Lords of the Manor. While in the church note the fine carvings on the North side pillar tops; the memorials to members of the Dolman and Sotheby families and the splendid early 16th century Denison Triptych in the Lady Chapel, carved on the continent and brought back to record the importance of the Denison family.

Leave the churchyard via the steps to the western gate onto Pavement. Bear half right across a small car park to the pedestrian crossing. Cross George Street and turn left.

6

On the South facing wall of the shop number 1 George Street look up to see the Sundial, the heritage board which includes a replica of Watson's map of Pocklington. William Watson, a nationally famous sundial manufacturer and mapmaker who lived on George Street. Watson was a self educated man who established the principles by which sundials work. The book which elucidated those principles was published by Forth's of Pocklington in 1854. Pause a while to work out the real time according to the instructions on display.

About turn and cross Scaife Garth to the entrance of the WWII memorial garden.

7

Enter the garden between the flower beds. The memorial is at the head of the short path. An additional tablet lists the names of Pocklington men killed in different actions since the end of the 1939-45 war.

Leave the garden, turning right and bearing right into West Green. Go past Wilberforce House and the ERYC carpark entrance to reach Pocklington School, founded by John Dolman in 1514 as a grammar school for clergy and lawyers. John Dolman was a Pocklington man who made his fortune as a lawyer and church man.

8

Visible from the footpath is the statue dedicated to William Wilberforce. The statue was carved by the nationally famous York based sculptor, Sally Arnup. Wilberforce was a pupil at Pocklington School between 1771 and 1776. While there he began his writings opposing slavery. The Slave Trade Act was passed in 1807 and slaves were freed in 1833. The statue was erected in 2007.

Cross West Green via the pedestrian crossing. Turn right and follow the path for approximately 400 yards reaching the new Becksid Surgery on your left across the Pocklington Beck. Turn into Amos Drive. Look along the rear of the surgery building and under a protective canopy is an aircraft engine.

9

The Merlin aircraft engine was unearthed in 2015 during the excavations for the foundations of Becksid Surgery. It comes from a Halifax Bomber which crashed on returning from a mission over Germany. The crew were killed on impact. The families of the crew members were contacted and attended the dedication of the engine as a memorial. Pocklington has substantial connections with the RAF squadrons who flew during the Second World War from RAF Pocklington (now the local industrial estate) and several other local airfields. The dedication is in the reception area of the surgery.

From the surgery retrace your steps along West Green almost as far as the pedestrian crossing turn right into Cemetery Lane. Follow Cemetery Lane for its full length and turn right into the Cemetery entrance. The Cemetery house and two former chapels have been converted into residences. Go past these into the 'Old Cemetery' to your left. ALTERNATIVELY, continue along Amos Drive, noting that the street names on this estate commemorate airman from RAF Pocklington who lost their lives in WWII. You should then see the posts marking a public right of way, take the left hand section and follow the tarmac path into the rear of the 'new' cemetery. Follow the path into the 'old' cemetery.

The Old Cemetery. Among the many bold and dramatic statues and gravestones there are several noting the names of long established Pocklington families? In the farthest corner with an Ivy bush growing against it is a memorial to a Scaife who is actually buried in Russia. Ponder the number of very young children dying before their fifth birthday.

Leave the cemetery past the former chapels; pass between the two supermarkets towards the roundabout. Bear right, cross The Balk with care and re-enter Burnby Gardens.

THE MINSTER WAY

Your opportunity to walk the trail!
Friday 6th September to Tuesday 10th September

The Minster Way is a splendid 50 mile route that links the two famous medieval Minsters of York and Beverley, crossing farmland and the chalk hills of the Yorkshire Wolds. Starting from York Minster, the route heads along the old streets of York and along the banks of the River Ouse to Fulford. The trail continues past the edge of Elvington Airfield with its Air Museum, to Kexby and Stamford Bridge, the site of a bloody battle between Saxons and Vikings - the last Saxon victory before losing to the Duke of Normandy, better known as William the Conqueror. After Stamford Bridge, the route travels through the villages of Full Sutton, Youlthorpe before reaching the start of the Wolds at Bishop Wilton. The crossing of the Yorkshire Wolds from west to east, is attractive and has some steep ascents and descents, passing through Great Givendale, Millington, and Huggate before the descent to North Dalton. The Minster Way continues through the villages of Bainton, Lockington, Scarborough and Arram (all names revealing Saxon origins). The final part of the walk leads us into the attractive town of Beverley, and our journeys end, at Beverley Minster.

Join us on this unique opportunity to walk the trail in five stages over five days during the Yorkshire Wolds Walking Festival in September 2019. The first stage will be on Friday 6th September, starting at York Minster, with the last stage on Tuesday 10th September, finishing at Beverley Minster.
