Walking with Offa 12

Riverbank and Otters along the Redlake and Teme

A flat, easy 5 mile linear walk along the Redlake and Teme rivers between Bucknell and Leintwardine taking around two and a half hours. Return by bus.

Turn left out of The Baron of Beef, Bucknell, and follow the road round to the church.

① Turn left in front of the church and follow the footpath past the churchyard and along by the river into the village. Cross the road onto a stony track and pass through two kissing gates into the meadow beyond. Go to the far end of the field, through a gate and then bear half right to the double gates over the railway at the far end of the next field. Ahead of you is the wooded Coxall Knoll, which hides an Iron Age hill fort.

- ③ Walk along the road for about half a mile.

- ⑥ Your route now brings you close to the hedge by the road, which you follow for the remaining half mile into Leintwardine. Leave the field by a stile and you will find the bus stop next to a convenient seat on the far side of the bridge.
